Wounded Woman's Condition Critical

Marie Robinson of 696 Hocking street, who was shot through the head in what police said was an attempted murder and suicide by Haywood Ray Sunday night, remains in critical condition today in City hospital where she was taken following the shooting. Also in the hospital as a result of the shooting is Laval Hemphill, also of 696 Hocking street, whose condition is reported to be "fair." He was shot through the shoulder.

The shooting occurred when Ray, who later committed suicide, found Hemphill and Marie Robinson in her rooms above the Shantytown Grill on Hocking street. The woman and Ray, called her "common law" husband, had separated several months ago.

NEATNESS ASKED IN ASKING FOR BONUS

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Feb. 17—Veterans should use care in preparing their applications for the Ohio bonus, says Courtney E. Kirby, assistant director of the bonus agency.

"The more messy, inaccurate and illegible applications we receive, the longer it will take to pay the boys off," he said. Send those applications in to us in good fashion—clean, legible and accurate."

He spoke at a meeting of veteran, civic and other organizations.

Asked repeatedly during a question period about the provision that original discharge papers must accompany the applications, Kirby said precautions would be taken to safeguard the papers.

The discharge documents will be stamped with a serial number and copied by photostat, he explained. They will be returned to their owners before the bonus checks are distributed.

Envelopes for mailing applications and discharge papers bear instructions for postmen not to fold them, he continued.

Kirby advised against registering this mail. Signing of receipts would slow down the process in bonus headquarters, he contended.

The bonus administration will use selective service records now stored in Columbus to check applications.

Form No. 2, the application blank to be submitted by next of kin of deceased veterans or service men, will be distributed by mail. Prospective applicants should write to World War II Compensation Fund, Columbus, O.

Adjutant General Chester W. Goble said total veterans and servicemen's organizations could get the forms after county distributing points receive them.

Forms for survivors of deceased veterans will be prepared later, he said.

CHILD KILLED IN FLASH FIRE

Upper Sandusky Baby Suffocates as Blaze Sweeps Parents' Home.

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, Feb. 17—Sandra Jane, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Gillen of Upper Sandusky died from suffocation in a flash fire that swept her parents' home at 11:30 a. m. Monday.

The child and her brother, Freddie, were playing upstairs at the time. Members of the family attempted to rescue them as the fire broke out. The lad was able to make his way downstairs unharmed, but the girl collapsed on the stairway. Dense smoke thwarted family attempts to reach the girl.

An Upper Sandusky fireman wearing a gas mask finally made his way up the stairway and removed the girl. Rushed to the office of an Upper Sandusky physician, she failed to respond to inhalator treatment. The physician and firemen worked over her for more than an hour.

Heavy damage resulted in the interior of the house before firemen brought the blaze under control. Origin of the fire was not determined immediately.

The body was taken to the Bringman and Co. funeral home where arrangements for funeral services are being completed today. Besides her parents she is survived by seven brothers and sisters, Richard, Jackie, Joanne, Eddie, David, Rosemary and Freddie. Also surviving are the maternal grandfather, Charles Gimmrig and the paternal grandmother, Mrs. William Gillen, both of Upper Sandusky.

School Group Reports Results In Downtown Clean-Up Drive

All merchants in downtown Marion have been contacted by members of the Future Retailers club of Marion, made up of students of Harding High school enrolled in the school's distributive education course, in regard to the clean-up campaign sponsored by the club. The campaign was launched last Monday, Feb. 9.

Frank E. Hall, a senior at Harding who is serving as general chairman of the campaign, reported that out of the 100 merchants and business men contacted, all but about five or six agreed to cooperate in the campaign to the fullest extent.

A committee, composed of Carol Darling and Marilyn Sekinger, following a check of the town Monday morning gave favorable reports of the condition to the class, stating that most sidewalks looked clean. Chairman Hall said, however, they also reported that merchants still were continuing to put the sweepings out into the street. One of the main objectives is to get the merchants to put the sweepings into containers instead of into the street.

Members of the club are planning to patrol the streets two or three times a week and then report on the success of the campaign. It is planned by the club to begin awarding certificates of appreciation to the merchants by the last of this week.

The slogan which has been adopted by the club for the campaign is "Help make Marion a cleaner city in which to live, visit and shop."

Miss Murl Frye, coordinator of distributive education, is adviser of the club.

Commodity Prices Dip After Shaky Opening

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—Commodity prices began slipping again today shortly after a nervous opening.

And an eastern food chain began marking up prices on some meats. Porterhouse and sirloin steaks, which were down as low as 63 cents a pound last week, went up in one chain to 73 cents.

Wheat prices at Chicago dropped off as much as 1¾ cents a bushel after starting slightly above yesterday's prices.

May corn contracts were up almost a cent, but other deliveries were down. Oats were down slightly.

Soybeans, however, maintained an earlier advance of 8 cents, the daily limit.

Cotton prices were down as much as $1.50 a bale in the New York futures market.

Stock prices were mixed on the New York exchange in a light market.

Wholesale butter prices advanced 3 to 4 cents a pound at New York, wiping out the unusually sharp declines of last Friday.

A reduction of 12 cents a pound was announced in linseed oil prices.

The irregularity followed yesterday's rally, one of the strongest since the price break began almost two weeks ago.

Meanwhile, economists tossed a wet blanket on consumers' hopes for further price cuts in meat.

The meat price dips probably will be short-lived, said agriculture department economists in Washington.

Meat animals on farms are decreasing, they added, and consumer demand is expected to continue high.

Store Cuts Prices

The warning coincided, however, with an announcement by the New York division of Safeway Stores, Inc., that it was reducing prices on 105 meat items from two to 10 cents beginning this morning.

The consumer meanwhile faced price gains on other fronts. The interstate commerce commission told 96 more railroads to raise basic passenger coach fares 13.63 per cent.

Grain, hogs and cattle were climbing when the markets closed. Butter gained in both New York and Chicago wholesale markets. Although the volume was small, prices pushed ahead on the New York stock exchange.

Seven Bid On Waldo Levee

Columbus Concern Submits Lowest Proposal; Contract To Be Awarded.

By The Associated Press

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Feb. 17—Seven firms submitted bids—all below the government estimate of $157,355—with the Huntington corps of engineers yesterday on construction of an earthen levee at Waldo, O.

The bids, six submitted by Ohio firms, ranged from $105,684 to $147,899. The lowest bidder was H. W. Holt and Son of Columbus, O.

The project involves construction of about 124,800 cubic feet of earth embankment west of Waldo to protect the Marion county town from backwaters of the proposed Delaware reservoir.

Since the highest bid was some $10,000 lower than engineers' estimate, Col. John R. Sharp, executive officer of the Huntington Corps, said the bids would be forwarded immediately to division headquarters at Cincinnati, O., for approval and awarding of the contract.

Other bidders and the amounts submitted were:

Carl Myers and Company, Columbus, $117,983; Rhoten and Frysinger, Columbus, $120,230; Lewis Shaw, Decatur, Ill., $122,580; Roger J. Au, Mansfield, O., $132,870; A. J. Baltes, Inc., Norwalk, O., $135,625, and V. N. Holderman and Son, Columbus, $147,899.80.

Possess Complete 'Know How,' Speaker Advises Sales Institute

"You can't sell if you don't know what you're talking about," Earl Roth, associate professor of business education at Bowling Green State university, told his audience of 335 Marion merchandisers in the third session of the Retail Training Institute at the Central Junior High school auditorium last night.

"Now is the time for action, not for complaining," he said. "You are in a highly competitive post-war era. The buying joyride is over, the customers are more particular, once hard-to-get merchandise is more plentiful. Salespeople and the merchandise they are to sell must be rejuvenated.

"Salesmen hold the key to the world's future, so they must work. You can't win prosperity sitting down, and you must sell the merchandise the manufacturers are making now to continue progress."

"First of all to be a salesman you must know how to sell, and to be a good salesman you must have knowledge of, confidence in, and enthusiasm for, the product you are selling," Mr. Roth told his audience. He also brought out these points.

Important Essentials

"A salesman should know that he is working for the best company and the best man possible. If this is not the case, then change your job. Know your company and its product and know where and how that product is made. Be alert, alive, and awake. Do not depend on the manufacturer to do all the advertising of the product. You as the salesperson are the man or woman who comes in contact with the customer. Tell that customer about the product. Know your merchandise. Your employer should, can, and will supply you with all the information possible concerning the merchandise you are selling, but no one can give you all the information about that product you would like to know, so think for yourself."

"Try to determine what the customer wants when he comes into your store. Regard every one who enters your store as a potential customer. For example, in ready to wear clothing a customer is interested in style, quality, what it will do for her, serviceability, comfort, distinctiveness, and brand names. As for price, if your merchandise is higher in price than that of your competition, find out what special quality it has which makes it cost more."

"A recent survey of a large Chicago store showed that 100,000 people entered that store daily. Of this number 60,000 purchased merchandise and 40,000 went elsewhere. The merchandise was there. Why did they go?" They ...

1,000 EVACUATED AS OHIO RIVER RISES

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Feb. 17—Evacuation of some 1,000 persons from low-lying areas in Cincinnati's East End was started today as the Ohio river inched upward toward a predicted 55-foot crest, three feet above flood level.

With the rain-swollen stream already past the flood stage, Red Cross workers and city employes moved the furniture and other belongings of several families, and provided shelter for them in refugee centers.

Basements and some first floors of numerous East End homes will be flooded before the river reaches the expected crest tomorrow noon, Red Cross officials said.

A barrier dam at the mouth of Millcreek, which protects industrial Millcreek valley from backwater up to an 83-foot stage, was put into operation last night.

Flood dangers were past for at least one neighboring Ohio river city. The river crested last night at Huntington, W. Va., 1.05 feet over the 50-foot flood stage.

Portsmouth, O., and Maysville, Ky., both with 50-foot flood stages, are due for 54-foot crests this afternoon and tonight, respectively.

With no rain in prospect to pour additional water into the river, weather observers reiterated earlier encouraging words that the rising stream would cause only minor damage here.

Senator Charges Raid on Office

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla.) said today senate investigators "raided" the office of one of his business associates "hoping to find something on me."

The senator insisted anew that he regards the inquiry into his commodity trading as "a closed incident."

Thomas told a reporter he has waited long enough for Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) either to call upon him for further information or to close the investigation by the senate appropriations subcommittee which Ferguson heads.

"He has done me all the harm he can," Thomas said.

Thomas and Dyke Cullum, his financial adviser, said six senate employes armed with "a handful of subpoenas" visited Cullum's office here last Jan. 10 and carried off an armful of records. Some were lost, they added.

Ferguson said a public session will be held "if the evidence merits it." But the committee has not yet passed upon the evidence, he added.

The committee, meanwhile, voted not to go into the trading of ...

Launch Meets Trouble While Returning Men to Ship from Shore Leave.

By The Associated Press

HYERES, France, Feb. 17—An officer and seven men of the U. S. aircraft carrier Midway are unaccounted for in the swamping of a liberty launch off the Riviera today, a French police official said.

The official, from the prefecture of nearby Toulon, said no bodies had been recovered. He said the officers of the carrier did not know whether the men drowned or merely failed to report back from shore leave.

The French press agency earlier said 15 bodies had been recovered. The Toulon official said he believed his version was more exact. The official added the sea was very rough when the sailors were returning in the early morning hours from a party ashore.

(In London, the U. S. Navy said eight men were "unaccounted for" in figures still subject to revision. This report was sent by Vice Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, commander of U. S. Naval forces in the Mediterranean, to Adm. Richard L. Conolly, commander in chief of U. S. Naval forces in the Eastern Atlantic and quarters are in London.

Return from Riviera

The accident occurred as the sailors were returning from a Riviera party to their ship, anchored near one of the Hyeres Islands off the southern coast of France, midway between Marseille and Cannes. Hyeres is 10 miles east of Toulon.

The French news agency earlier said 40 men were missing after the launch went down.

Officers are conducting a roll call aboard the Midway, which has a complement of 3,500 men, to determine definitely how many are missing.

Accounts of how the accident occurred were not immediately clear. Most reports said the launch was carrying from 150 to 200 men. One said the launch hit a pyramid of stones, throwing all the men into the water.

Another said that when water poured into the craft some of the sailors jumped into the water, but that the launch continued along to the 45,000-ton carrier.

The French news agency said the launch struck an obstruction and sank.

Anchored Near Island

The men were returning from a casino at the small island of Hydres, off the Riviera. The Midway is anchored off another of the small islands in the Hyeres group.

The accident occurred at 1 a. m. (8 a. m. Monday, EST).

The Midway, which the United States has maintained in the Mediterranean for several months, was paying a courtesy call to the French Riviera. Hyeres is east of Toulon. The small Hyeres islands are just south of here.

The Navy department in Washington announced last month that the Midway was to be with...

MARION YOUTH IN CREW OF MIDWAY

According to a report from his mother this morning, a Marion youth is serving on the aircraft carrier Midway. He is William C. Swearingen, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Swearingen, of 460½ North Prospect street.

Mrs. Swearingen said she had received a letter from her son, a seaman second class, last Wednesday. At that time the Midway was off the Riviera and Swearingen had had shore leave at Toronto, a French village.

The letters also said the Midway had visited Gibraltar and Naples and had recently been patrolling the Mediterranean off the coast of Greece.

Swearingen was graduated from Harding High school in 1946. He enlisted in the Navy on June 4, shortly after graduation. His boot training was taken at Great Lakes training station.

He was home last September on a five-day leave prior to being assigned to the Midway, his mother said. Mrs. Swearingen was disinclined to believe that other Marion boys may be members of the Midway complement. She said her son had not mentioned meeting any local boys among the crew.

CHRIST in You, ✝ THE HOPE of Glory

THE MIND OF CHRIST

Philippians 2:3-8: "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus."

"WHO, being in the form of God . . . (Renunciation) . . . made Himself of no reputation . . . (Dispossession) . . . took upon Him the form of a servant . . . (Subordination) . . . was made in the likeness of men . . . (Incarnation) . . . He humbled Himself . . . (Humiliation) . . . became obedient unto death (Expiration) . . . even the death of the cross" . . . (Degredation).

It was in a bloody shroud they wrapped Him. His sacred Person was disfigured by marks of public violence: His hands bore them, His feet, His wounded side. This is "very God" and in Him we see self-sacrifice perfected.

We are of this body. Do we possess this mind? It is a reasonable request. (literally), "Mind this in you which was also (minded) in Christ Jesus." Such a mind is the inevitable result of a truly Spirit-controlled "life hid with Christ in God." Do you possess it? Does it possess you?

Love's Perilous Path

By ADELE GARRISON

I HAD dreaded the question which I was sure Harry Underwood was going to put to Dicky and me out when it came I was distinctly relieved. It was so impersonal, although the drama and the tragedy of that old time were so completely removed from us that we could treat the subject of the marvelous resemblance of Carlotta Carroll, Mr. "K's" new friend, to Grace Draper, who had been the bete noir of my early married life as if it were an academic question.

"It sure cuts me between the eyes," as you so originally phrase it," he told his old friend with a grin. "At first glance you'd almost swear Grace Draper was standing in the doorway. But when you leaned back and looked the gal over there are several distinct differences. You saw them, didn't you Madge?"

He had made it easy for me to join in the discussion, and I made my own contribution easily, thanks to Dicky's understanding.

"Indeed, yes," I said. "The eyes the hair, both are distinctly different. And then, the manner and the mind."

"I know what you mean," Lillian said, playing up promptly, and with a feeling of deep thankfulness, mingled with a vague irritation that they should feel their effort necessary, I realized that my husband and our two oldest and dearest friends, were doing everything in their power to "cushion the corners" for me.

"Grace was cold as a moonbeam, except—" Lillian switched abruptly, but I knew that she meant "except when she fell in love—" Then she went on swiftly.

"This Carlotta gal," she said, "has the most delightful natural warmth I ever have seen in any girl. She's like a child. But don't make any mistake about any child-like quality in her brain. She's a quiz kid, with a towering I. Q., and I don't mean maybe."

"Nobody's going to dispute you," her husband drawled, "and now that we've toasted Carlotta on both sides and set her on the hearth to keep warm, suppose we turn to something even more intriguing. What do you suppose the Chief is going to do with those samples of Olga's handwriting and her stationery?"

"He told you already, you wild ass of the Celebes," Dicky told him. "He's going to turn them over to Carlotta."

"And what's she going to do with them?" Harry persisted.

"Play solitaire, maybe," Dicky suggested hopefully, and Lillian struck in balefully.

"Dicky-bird," she threatened, "if you chirp one more note out of tune, I, personally, am going to wring your neck. What are you getting at, Harry?"

"Just this," the big man said. "Father wants to find out who would be best in approaching are the friends of yours—the trad- the people across seas whom Ohio ors," I mean—in this country, needs." This Dolores Manning we read about "And with Carlotta's aid," L. will come to this country soon I am said, "the Chief can sit in She will give Carlotta a list of the middle of his web, and entice names to whom eventually there all the little flies into it." forged notes can be given, notes

U.S. Moves To Release Airmen Held in Poland

By The Associated Press

WARSAW, Feb. 17 — United States embassy officials negotiated with Polish authorities today for the release of five U. S. airmen detained for landing without visas yesterday when they flew U. S. Ambassador Stanton Griffis here from London.

The men were placed under guard at the airport and later taken, still under guard, to a Warsaw hotel.

Griffis, returning here after conferences at Washington, declined comment on detention of his crew.

The Poles said recently that foreign fliers landing in Poland without visas would be subject to arrest.

CRIME PREVENTION WEEK OBSERVANCE SCHEDULED

The annual observance of national crime prevention week is now in progress, J. C. A. Arter, chairman of the local program, announced today.

The local observance is sponsored annually by the Exchange club of Marion, in cooperation with Exchange clubs throughout the nation.

The increase in crime since the close of World War II has spurred national interest in crime prevention and observance of "crime prevention week" is expected to be greater than in former years, Mr. Arter stated.

FBI Checks Reports Vets Cheated on Houses

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 — FBI agents are working on complaints from thousands of ex-GI's that they were cheated on veterans housing.

A justice department official who disclosed this today said reports of chiseling by builders have come in from nearly every part of the country.

The largest number, he said, are from Los Angeles, Baltimore, New York, New Orleans, Miami, Dallas and Chicago.

Morris Verner, compliance officer for the housing expediter, said 26,000 former soldiers have appealed to his division alone.

Verner said some contractors left a full room out of the houses they built. One man, he said, cut the width of each house in a row by one foot so he could get more houses in a block.

Proposes Wright Home As National Museum

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—Rep. Raymond H. Burke (R-Ohio) has introduced a bill that would make the Orville Wright home in Dayton, O., a national museum.

The bill would authorize the government to buy the house as a memorial to the Wright brothers for their work in aviation.

Burke also suggested if the museum is approved the famed Kitty Hawk plane be kept there.

COLUMBIA GAS SYSTEM IN 1947

From The Annual Report of Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation

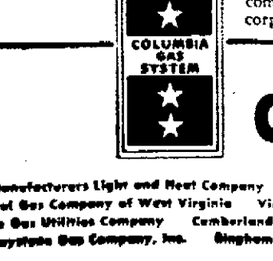
By most standards, 1947 was a highly successful year for the Columbia Gas System. The subsidiary operating companies delivered more gas to their customers than ever before. Gas earnings reached the highest in history. And more money was distributed in dividends than has been paid for many years.

But while these results were achieved, the System did not escape the inflation that beset most business in this country. Costs were higher, materials hard to get. And because of shortages, we, in turn, were unable to deliver all the gas our customers wanted.

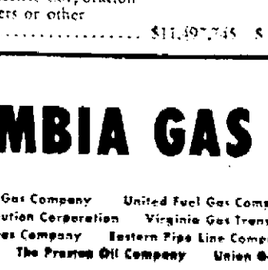
In the months to come, the facilities of this public service will grow. More and more gas from the more than adequate reserves will flow through Columbia's lines.

And because the gas we furnish has become such a vital force in the economic development of the communities we serve, we have an abiding sense of responsibility in bringing a constantly improving service to them

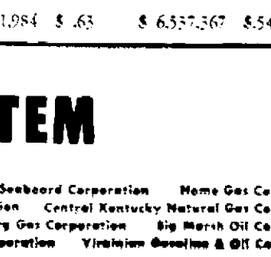
Columbia serves natural gas to a million homes and businesses in Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Kentucky, Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland; and delivers gas to other public utilities in this area which, in turn, sell gas to another 800,000 customers.



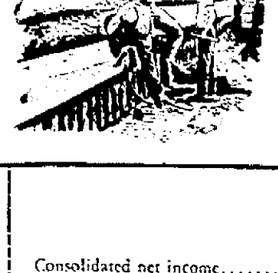
More gas than ever before was wanted by and delivered to these customers in 1947. There were 26 days in December when the System delivered more than a billion cubic feet a day, and for the year, Columbia delivered a total of 231 billion cubic feet, a gain of 18.5 per cent over 1946.



The tremendous peaks created by this unprecedented demand were met in part by building 12 liquefied petroleum plants; by storing more gas underground; by bringing more gas into the System from Southwest fields in Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Kansas. Yet these increases were not enough to meet all the wants of the System's customers, especially in cold weather.



Columbia spent $30,594,411 for production, storage, transmission and distribution facilities in 1947. To meet the still increasing demand for this clean, convenient low-cost fuel, the System plans to spend an additional $111,000,000 in 1948, 1949 and 1950.



Even with 1947 sales at an all time high, gas reserves of the System increased to an estimated 6½ trillion feet, 2½ trillion of which are in the Appalachian area and 4 trillion under contract from Southwest fields—enough natural gas to supply existing and prospective customers for many years to come.

Directs Research

... Mr. McBerty continues ... devote a large portion of his ... to the direction of research ... development of the McBerty ... system of dial automatic switching, an invention which culminated his career of inventing. This system was first placed on the market in 1938. With the North company, Mr. McBerty pushed research on developments of principles of dial automatic relay selection now universally accepted. The first all-relay systems were placed on the market in 1920 in the United States.

A native of Warren, O., Mr. McBerty was born Feb. 14, 1868, and began his experiments with automatic telephone apparatus while still a school boy in Warden. He began his career in telephony with Western Electric in 1887, at the age of 19. With Western Electric he was progressively in charge of development at the Western Electric laboratory, in charge of the Western Electric Patent department and chief engineer for Western Electric company in Europe. When his headquarters for Western Electric were in Antwerp, Belgium, he was forced to leave Belgium for England by tramp steamer just in advance of invading German armies in World War I. The normal 12-hour trip took four days through Dutch mine fields and under fire from Dutch guns.

In Europe he directed developments of the rotary dial automatic system widely used in Europe and other parts of the world, known in Europe as the McBerty Rotary system. He continued his work in London until 1917. Possessing a keen mind, he recalls vividly many wartime experiences including the Zeppelin raids on London.

First X-Ray in U. S.

In his work with the Western Electric company, Mr. McBerty collaborated with C. E. Scribner in the perfection of the X-ray tube and photographic process. The first X-ray photograph made in America was of Mr. McBerty's hand during the conduct of these experiments.

Mr. McBerty was active in the development of the first printing telegraph equipment and in the development of the Deforest vacuum tube, forerunner of modern radio. He is one of the few persons to have been admitted to full membership of the British institution of electrical Engineers, without having passed through the lower grades of membership. He became a member of this organization in 1914. He is a "Fellow" of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and a founder of the Western Society of Engineers. At home and abroad, he has been the recipient of many honors for his engineering achievements including medals of honor at the 1906 and 1914 Paris Expositions. In 1917 he received the Fahy prize for his paper on "Machine Switching Telephone Gear."

Civic-minded, Mr. McBerty at one time or another has belonged to the following organizations: charter member of American Chamber of Commerce in London, United States Chamber of Commerce, the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, Rotary and Kiwanis clubs.

A former resident of Galion, Mr. McBerty now resides on Park Avenue West road, near Mansfield. He is a familiar figure in Galion, and spends much time at his laboratory in the Galion plant of the North Electric company.

Says Man Has Strange Powers That Work While He Sleeps

A strange man in Los Angeles, known as "The Voice of Two Worlds," reveals the story of a remarkable system that often leads to improvement in power of mind, achievement of brilliant business and professional success and new happiness. Many report improvement in health. Others tell of increased body strength, magnetic personality, courage and poise.

The man, a well-known explorer and geographer, tells how he found these strange methods in far-off and mysterious Tibet, often called the land of miracles by the few travelers permitted to visit it. He discloses how he learned rare wisdom and long hidden practices, closely guarded for three thousand years by the sages, which enabled many to perform amazing feats. He maintains that these immense powers are latent in all of us, and that methods for using them are now simplified so that they can be used by almost any person with ordinary intelligence.

He maintains that man, instead of being limited by a one-man-power-mind, has within him the mind-power of a thousand men or more as well as the energy-power of the universe which can be used in his daily affairs. He states that this sleeping giant of mind-power, when awakened, can make man capable of surprising accomplishments, from the prolonging of youth to success in many fields. Strangely, he says that this power works best while we sleep, when proper methods are used.

The author states the time has come for this long-hidden system to be disclosed to the Western world, and offers to send his amazing 9000-word treatise which reveals many startling results—to readers of this paper, free of cost or obligation. For your free copy, address the Institute of Mentalphysics, 213 South Hobart Blvd., Dept. 908-E, Los Angeles 4, Calif. Readers are urged to write promptly, as only a limited number of the free treatises have been printed.—Adv.

British troops finally dispersed the Arab attackers.

Margaret Truman Marks 24th Birthday Today

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—Margaret Truman is 24 years old today. But the White House said "it is just the same as any other day" for the President's daughter.

"There is nothing planned that I know of," in the way of special festivities, said Miss Reathel Odom, Mrs. Truman's personal secretary.

Margaret said a few days ago she had no party planned; "absolutely nothing," she added.

The chances are there will be a birthday cake, as there was last year at dinner, which was a family affair.

EVENTS HONOR RICHWOOD MAN

Guy Moore Central Figure in Marion Meeting and Richwood Show.

Guy Moore, a native of Richwood and his guiding Pilot Dog, were the feature attractions at two community events Monday in the Marion area. First was the Marion Lions club weekly luncheon meeting at Hotel Harding and the other was the first performance of the Richwood community minstrel show.

A talk regarding the procedure in the training of dogs to lead blind people was given at the Marion Lions meeting by Stanley Doran of Pataskala, O., who operates the Pilot Dog school in Columbus. He accompanied Mr. Moore to the meeting. The minstrel show, which is to be given again tonight at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium, is sponsored by the Richwood Lions club, with all proceeds going toward the sight conservation and blind work of the club.

For the presentation of the guiding Pilot Dog to Mr. Moore was the highlight of the minstrel show. The dog, a German shepherd named "Bessie" was purchased by the Lions club for Mr. Moore.

H. R. Fischer, president of the Richwood club, made the presentation and talks were given by Marion Shuman, secretary of the Richwood club; Clarence Jenkins of Mt. Vernon, state secretary of Lions, and Erwin C. Beam of Elyria, Lions district governor.

Learned Piano Tuning

Mr. Moore, whose parents reside near Richwood, attended the school for the blind in Columbus and educated himself to make his own living by tuning pianos. He works at this business in the area around Columbus, London and Richwood. He has been training with the dog in Columbus for the last month, under the instruction of the trainer, Mr. Doran.

Included in the minstrel show are skits, quartet numbers, chorus selections and duos, a hillbilly band, an orchestra and a follies show. The Lions chorus under the direction of Marvin Fogt, director of music in the Richwood schools, also sang. The entire cast of the show is composed of about 65 Richwood people.

Explains Training System

In his talk to the Marion Lions club on the training of dogs as Pilot Dogs, Mr. Doran, explained just what is done during the three-month training period. During the first month, the dog is taught to stop at curbs and to stay on sidewalks. Then during the second month, they relax the controls on the dogs and teach them to avoid things on sidewalks and to depend upon themselves and not only on the master. In the third month of training, the dog is taken into every spot possible that a human being could possibly get into. Mr. Doran was accompanied by his uncle, Dr. Alex Doran, also of Columbus.

Mr. Moore, who had been a guest at Marion club meetings several times and was presented his first white cane by the Marion club, gave a short talk.

Secretary Praises Clubs

Mr. Jenkins, state secretary, also gave a short talk in which he praised the Lions club for the fine work they have done in the past.

Guests were Lion Edward Hastings of Richwood, Lion Marion Shuman of Richwood, Lion Herbert Smith of North Hollywood, Cal., formerly of Marion, and A. U. Whitehurst of Akron.

STEELWORKERS DON'T INTEND TO STRIKE

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 17—The CIO-United Steelworkers of America do not intend to introduce the threat of a strike in steel industry wage negotiations next April.

That promise was voiced yesterday by Philip Murray, head of both the CIO and the Steelworkers, after a closed meeting of the union's 41-man executive board.

The meeting had been called by the steelworkers and established the amount of the wage boost the union will ask from steel companies this spring.

Current contracts run another year but include clauses that permit the reopening of wage negotiations in April.

Murray refused to reveal the amount of the wage demand set during the meeting. The board's decision will be presented to the union's wage policy committee tomorrow and Murray said the wage program will be announced after that meeting.

Steelworkers hourly wage earnings have been put at $1.54 by the union which declared the steel industry can afford to grant a boost to offset the loss of earning power because of the higher cost of living.

Senate Committee Favors Extension of Rent Control

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—The senate banking committee unanimously favors extending rent controls 14 months with some changes.

The house banking committee voted 18 to 5 to continue the existing law "as is" for one month. It would decide later about a longer extension and any changes.

But members of both committees predicted today the house and the senate will get together on one of the two proposals—or a compromise—by Feb. 29. The present law expires then.

The senate committee voted 13 to 0 late yesterday for continuing controls through April 30, 1949.

Its bill would permit rent increases up to 15 per cent where tenants and landlords agreed on a lease running through 1949. The present law, up to the start of this year, allowed increases of the same amount in return for a lease good through 1948.

Tenants who already have agreed to a 15 per cent rent boost could not be charged another one, said Senator Cain (R-Wash.), chairman of a banking subcommittee on rents.

How Law Would Work

Here is Cain's explanation of how the new law would work on those points:

In the case of tenants who accepting rent increases for leases running through 1948, their present rents would be "frozen" when two-e leases expire Dec. 31. This "freeze" would remain in effect through April 30, 1949—the expiration date of the proposed new law.

Rent control then would end for all tenants who signed leases under the expiring law.

For those who signed leases under the new law, that is, after Feb. 29, 1948, there could be no further increase until Jan. 1, 1950.

What of tenants who have not already signed a "voluntary" increase lease—and would not under the proposed extension? Cain says their rents would remain unchanged until April 30, 1949. They would have no protection after that.

Some Increases Allowed

The senate committee bill would require the federal rent administrator to permit higher rents where a landlord could prove he was operating at a loss. The administrator would decide how much of an increase.

Besides the rent increase provisions, the senate committee bill also would:

▶Impose a penalty up to one year in jail and a $1,000 fine on any wilful violator. This would apply, for example, if a landlord were found guilty of raising the rent before May, 1949, of any tenant who signed a lease originally intended to run only through 1948.

▶Remove controls on all dwellings rented for $225 or more.

▶Permit the rent administrator to remove controls on rooming or boarding houses if he saw fit.

▶End controls on non-housekeeping rooms in private homes.

▶Require landlords to give a 60-day notice for eviction on any grounds except (a) non-payment of rent or (b) where the tenant has become a nuisance. In these two cases, local law would apply. All eviction cases were made subject to local rather than federal law in the expiring control law.

▶Permit eviction, with 60-day notice, where extensive remodeling or alteration to provide more dwellings is planned.

▶Remove bans on use of scarce building materials for recreation places, such as bowling alleys.

DR. BERTRAM GOODMAN SPEAKS TO DENTAL CLUB

Dr. Bertram Goodman was speaker for the monthly meeting of the Marion Dental Study club last night at Hotel Harding. A dinner preceded the program at which he gave a talk by Goodman on "Orthodontics." He presented case histories of cases and its results. The talk was followed by a round table discussion. Dr. A. J. Wagner had charge of the program. March 15.

The Memoirs of Cordell Hull

3rd Term Candidacy Followed Refusal of Hull To Enter Race

By CORDELL HULL

...right, 1948, by North American Newspaper Alliance.

INSTALLMENT XX

The third term was an immediate consequence of Hitler's conquest of France and the specture of Britain standing alone between the conqueror and ourselves. Our dangerous position induced President Roosevelt to run for a third time.

Prior to that time the President, in personal conversations with me and with some Democratic party leaders, had indicated his desire and wish that I should be his successor. I had taken every step I could, however, to make it clear I was not a candidate for the presidency. With Europe at war, with Japan preparing for its next move, and with the United States facing innumerable problems in foreign affairs, I felt it was more important to the nation that I should continue to handle our foreign affairs, under the President, than to strive to become President myself. Moreover, my health at times was not all it should have been and I had no desire of being drawn into partisan politics in 1940.

From the end of 1938 until July, 1939, President Roosevelt expressed himself to me as definitely in favor of my being his successor in 1940. The matter first came up in October, 1938 when I went to the White House to discuss a point of foreign policy with him.

"This point," I said, "will not be settled for several years, until after this term is over."

His face lighted up, and he replied, "Why, that's fine. At that time you'll be in my chair, if my efforts succeed, and you'll be in good position to deal with it."

I MIGHT HAVE THANKED him and suggested that we proceed toward organizing my candidacy. This I did not do—just the contrary. I made clear to him that I did not intend to get into presidential politics.

"I believe the world's going straight to hell," I said, "and I think I can be of greater service in the state department."

Several times after the President took occasion to mention the same subject. Each time he brought it up, I instead of proposing that we organize, said just the opposite. If we had proceeded to organize, he would have been committed.

Mr. Roosevelt also mentioned to numerous senators and congressmen and Democratic leaders throughout the country, his interest in having me succeed him.

In April, 1940, during a cabinet dinner, Mrs. Hull sat next to the President. There seemed some indication that I would be called upon to speak after the dinner. Mrs. Hull remarked to the President that I did not like to make speeches, to which he replied, "Well, tell him he had better get used to it. He'll have a lot of it to do soon."

Beginning in January, 1940, I made several press statements in which I said I had no ambitions whatever for the presidency.

IN THE SPRING of 1940 a popular opinion poll gave me a slightly larger number of votes than the President as a candidate for the next term, and a much larger number of votes than the prospective Republican candidate paired off against me.

Within my own party this situation aroused considerable alarm among extreme left wing elements in the New Deal group, including some persons very close to the President. This group and others were determined that the President should run for a third term, and they did not relish the prospect of my being a candidate.

Beginning several years before 1940, certain members of this circle, allied with a few columnists, began a series of sharp attacks against me.

As late as about June 20, 1940, when I saw the President at the White House, he again referred to the statement he had made at repeated intervals since October, 1938, that he wanted me to be his successor. On this occasion he still gave me no indication that he intended to run again—in fact, just the opposite.

The New Deal group close to him had been insistently urging him to run, but he had held them off. Scattered critics have said that the President, in telling a few close friends that I was his choice in 1940, was simply using me as a buffer until he himself got in, and that he was not maintaining good faith with me. I am sure, however, that he meant what he said to me. Not desiring the post, I was in better position to judge than otherwise.

IT SEEMED TO ME that, although he continued to retain the views he had expressed to me in October 1938, there may have been times when, under the terrific pleadings of some of his advisers, he felt disposed to run for a third term. He unquestionably desired my nomination as late as the spring of 1940, to judge from statements he made to me and others up to that time.

Then on July 3, 1940, I had another conversation with him. By now, France had signed the Armistice with Germany, Britain was making frantic preparations against invasion, Mussolini had plunged into the war, Japan was preparing to move, and our own position was grave. This conversation made such an impression on me that, when I returned to the state department, I wrote out some notes in longhand.

The President had invited me to luncheon. We were alone. During most of the eating stage, I brought up and disposed of several department matters. Finally, the President suddenly said, "Well, now, let's talk some politics. You know, there are many people saying to me, 'You can't afford to let us down.'"

The President, in saying this, used a sort of impatient incredulous tone.

I remarked that it was probably an avalanche of people.

THE PRESIDENT SAID he had been reading Washington's letter to Madison in which Washington complained about criticism against his running for a second term. Mr. Roosevelt said he had in mind to address a letter to someone like Senator George Norris and end by saying that he desired to go back to Hyde Park. Thereupon, he said, the convention would nominate me. He asked me what I thought of such a letter.

I promptly replied, "Of course, such a letter would not delay your nomination by a split-second."

The President thereupon began to speculate on how he himself might win under certain circumstances. He spoke slightly haltingly and disconnectedly. His tone was that of deprecating the idea of running. He said he thought he could win in November, unless the war should stop. In the latter event Wendell Willkie, the Republican nominee, might defeat him, but he would not care except for the country's sake. I made no comment.

He then started to get onto my strong and weak qualities as a candidate for President. He was extremely guarded compared to his former conversations with me, when he had forthrightly said he considered me his successor.

I INTERRUPTED HIM to say that, in any event, I was not to be considered. My interruption was inspired both because of the two reasons I have mentioned for not wishing to run, and also because at the moment I was clearly of the opinion that he himself had made up his mind to become a candidate. I emphasized my state of health and said:

"For many months my wife and I have agreed that I should go out of public service, and especially politics. In order that my situation might not in the slightest interfere with presidential talk about you, I've often made public statements to the effect that I have no desire or intention to get into presidential politics."

The President went ahead, however, to point out my weaknesses, as he saw them, after saying generally that my standing throughout the nation was good.

HENRY WALLACE

When Hull declined to be Roosevelt's third term vice presidential candidate the President said: "Then I'll have to get Henry Wallace to run." Hull answered, "That's all right with me," but in his memoirs reports, "This remark does not mean I supported Wallace for the vice presidency."

He mentioned only one item of weakness, however—the propaganda against the trade agreements in the farm belt. He then added that I could probably take Wallace or some person in the farm belt as vice president and win.

I repeated my disclaimer of any intention to run for the nomination. I said I had not only kept myself carefully and entirely out of his political picture and range, but I had also seen to it that he had credit for everything we had done and were doing at the state department. He cheerfully agreed that this was the truth.

THE PRESIDENT'S WHOLE TONE and language during our conversation was a complete reversal of what it had been ten days before, when he was still advocating my candidacy.

The President at this time must have made up his mind to accept a third term. Certainly a huge movement was already in motion to urge him to do so. In view of my course from January on of issuing numerous public statements to the effect that I had no intention of getting into politics in 1940 and refusing to permit any organized effort by friends in many states who desired to make one, it was not unnatural that certain sections of the party, especially the more extreme New Dealers and other strong partisans of the President, should start organized movements over the country in favor of a third nomination because of the emergency conditions confronting the country. This movement gradually gained momentum until members of the Democratic national committee and federal officials and other friendly elements fell into line. The matter was now settled.

ALMOST IMMEDIATELY the President began urging me to run with him as vice president. He called me to the White House and pleaded with me for some two hours and forty minutes. I declined and stood firm in my declination.

To me, being vice president meant that a man would permit himself to sit as presiding officer of the senate with no authority to participate in the proceedings or even to vote except in the case of a tie. I recalled Jefferson's characterization of the vice presidency, with which I agreed. Elected vice president in 1796, he wrote: ". . . . It will give me philosophical evenings in the winter, and rural days in the summer. The second office of the government is honorable and easy . . . ."

Comparing this situation with my present position, I was quick and strong in saying to the President that I could render far more valuable service in the troublous days ahead by staying at the state department.

I was not interested in an easy, soft place with the highest honor next to the Presidency.

One or two days later the President called me back to the White House and again pressed his proposal on me most earnestly. I stood firm in my original attitude.

A NIGHT OR SO LATER the President telephoned me at my apartment. He again pressed his offer with much emphasis. Again I refused.

He then said, "Let me talk to Frances. I'll convince her, and she can convince you."

Mrs. Hull, who was right beside me, kept shaking her head. She did not want to be drawn into the discussion.

I said to the President, "Mrs. Hull has gone to bed. I can't call her to the 'phone."

He then said, "If you don't take it, I'll have to get Henry Wallace to run."

I continued to refuse. "That's all right with me," I said.

This remark does not mean I support Wallace for the vice presidency. The fact was I was having a strenuous time to keep from being pressed into the office by Roosevelt, and I was not objecting to anybody he mentioned as a substitute. It was in that sense that I said "O.K." to his mention of Wallace rather than in the sense of approving Wallace or of taking part in the selection of the vice president.

THE CONVENTION ON July 18 nominated President Roosevelt for a third term. I went to the White House that day and congratulated him.

I myself was strongly opposed to the third term idea. I feared lest it set a precedent for some future President to abuse the power entrusted to him. I felt it had only one justification. This was that we were then in the midst of a terrible international crisis, when western civilization seemed in the greatest danger in its history; if Roosevelt did not run, another Democratic nominee might have lost; and it would have been disastrous in that event for the government to be left without a real head during the two and a half months between the elections and the inauguration, on January 20, 1941. I felt that no foreign government would have any respect for an administration that had been repudiated, and there was no telling what action the Axis countries might take and what results might have ensued during what would have amounted to an interregnum.

What I had in mind was something like Pearl Harbor occurring during that period.

Report on the Greek Venture

THE President's second quarterly report on aid to Greece and Turkey deals almost entirely with Greece, for that's where the trouble is.

In the six months since our Balkan venture was launched, progress hasn't been too good. Communist guerrillas have concentrated on the civilian population, driving some 420,000 refugees from their homes, many into overcrowded cities.

The situation in Greece can't improve until the guerrillas are checked. So far the Greek army's counter-measures have been neither vigorous nor adept, with the result that American military advisers have been assigned to Greek commanders. This is a step perilously close to open intervention, but it is a step we have to take to protect commitments already made. The question of the wisdom of our policy in Greece is an academic one, for we have embarked on a course which can't be casually abandoned.

Gestures With an Empty Gun

THE mayor of Tel Aviv, Israel Rokach, recently talked in San Francisco about the result of the gestures with an empty gun made in Palestine by the United Nations.

Palestine Jews, he pointed out, accepted the partition boundaries announced late last November, even though they did not agree with some of them. By lining up with the United Nations, Mayor Rokach explained, the Palestine Jews put themselves in direct conflict with the Arabs.

The latter have defied the United Nations, thereby leaving the Palestine Jews to bear the consequences of a decision that the United Nations apparently can't enforce. Though the Feb. 15 "D-day" named by the Arab league as the beginning of an offensive passed with no more bloodshed than usual, more than 1,200 persons already have been killed since last November.

George E. Sokolsky, the columnist, has reached the gloomiest possible conclusion about the consequences of the United Nations decision, which he feels sure will not be enforced:

"The British will withdraw. The Jews and Arabs will murder each other. The United Nations will do nothing. Nobody will do anything. The United Nations will shrink in prestige to next to nothing. The pattern will be formed for more bloodshed, more genocide throughout the world. And it is said that World War II settled something."

Clearing the Air

THE supreme court's refusal to act in the Leon Josephson case should go a long way toward clarifying the power of congressional committees.

Josephson had been sentenced to a year and fined $1,000 for refusing to testify before the house un-American committee. Embattled Communists, fellow travelers and assorted liberals foresaw the start of an inquisition.

The supreme court sees no such menace. By a 6-3 vote it decided to let the Josephson conviction stand. Congressional committees have the right to ask witnesses questions which might prove embarrassing. That smoke you smell isn't from inquisitorial faggots: it's being generated by Communists who are hot under the collar.

Wailing and Gnashing of Teeth

THE ordinary purchaser of groceries, commodities and so on, who doesn't know any more about economics than a pig knows about Christmas, is puzzled.

Heavy thinkers who are supposed to know economics forward and backward have been telling consumers that prices are too high; consumers have believed them. But now, if the same thinkers tell consumers it is a very alarming thing for prices to drop, consumers won't know what to believe.

Many of them may feel forced to believe that the people who talk that way don't know what they're talking about. Either that, or they want to eat their cake and have it too; they want prices to be high but do not want to pay them. To some extent, the ordinary purchaser himself is in this class, because he has no objection to high wages, only to high prices.

But it stands to reason that if prices are too high, they should be lowered. It does not stand to reason that if they are lowered it is going to mean economic disaster, which is the curious line some commentators are inviting consumers to believe. The thing wouldn't be worth mentioning if the commentators weren't in danger of being taken seriously.

For some reason, the United States seems unable any longer to tolerate the most ordinary economic experiences without wailing and gnashing of teeth. All bogus experts, massive brains, economic double-talk and political goobledygook to the contrary notwithstanding, prices went up—some have started to come down—if this is a disaster, let's make the most of it.

The Atlantic Ocean is believed to reach its greatest depth—almost 28,000 feet—in the Milwaukee Deep, about 45 miles off Puerto Rico's coast.

Scanning the Record

By George E. Sokolsky

Taking Common Sense View of Taxes.

A HIGH budget can easily become a habit. Federal, state and municipal budgets are the products of 15 years of that habit. Certainly, it is not necessary in peacetime for the employment of more than 5,000,000 persons in the various branches of government. In many offices, they trip over each other. At any rate, there will be a full report on this subject, so far as the federal administration is concerned, in January, 1949, when Herbert Hoover's commission makes the facts known. That date was set by congress in the original bill. It would be more satisfactory to have the facts now.

SOKOLSKY

The high cost of government is appalling to those who have to pay taxes, although it may not bother the few remaining non-taxable citizens. For instance, the magazine, "America" has this to say about taxes:

". . . It's a sad prospect for the reduce-taxes-at-any-price crowd, who are much more sensitive to vote-catching techniques than to the grim realities of the postwar period . . ."

Justifiable Activity

There is no reason to be contemptuous of the "vote-catching" member of congress. Ours is a representative government of elected officials. All members of congress have to be elected and therefore must "catch votes." The intellectual or any other kind of snob who is sure that he knows what's what but refuses to submit himself or his ideas to the test of a vote ought not to look down upon the citizen who stands the test of our representative system. We can, of course, "reform" it so as to an authoritarian system, but thus far that does not seem to be the choice of the American people.

In another editorial in "America," the writer indicates an emphatic dislike for the congressional system by a denunciation of Senator George, one of the most respected members of the senate. "America" says:

". . . We strongly suspect, however, that there is more to the senator's remonstrance . . . than a reasonable concern for federal economy. His is the typical reaction of a man bringing all his attention to bear on a rivers-and-harbors bill! He wants to carry on in the normal, established way. Implicit in his attitude is the position made explicit by Senator Taft: 'We are at peace with the world.'"

Unfair Tactics

Pretty cheap, that comment seems to me. It is answering an argument with a vicious smear. It is hurling opprobrium when logic would be more fitting. Few men in this country are more expert in its fiscal affairs than Senator George, who has devoted a lifetime to the subject. The editorial writer of "America" may disagree with Senator George, Senator Taft, or any other senator, but it is certainly not his function nor his sphere in life to voice his objections with calumny. It is not only bad taste, but in the instance of both Senator George and Senator Taft, one a Democrat, the other a Republican, it is untrue. They are not devoted to that particular form of selfishness symbolized by "river and harbor bills."

The fact of the matter is that the taxpayers in the United States desire a tax reduction. Most senators and members of the house of representatives who have to run for office in 1948 will vote for tax reduction. There are differences as to the amount of reduction and the form it is to take, but there is no difference as to the necessity for it. When congress passes a tax bill, it will be passed over his head, should Mr. Truman veto. The community property clause is certain of passage, as it should be.

No Time for Wartime Taxes

There is no logic, no common sense, in the maintenance of wartime taxes, nearly three years after the war is over. There is no logic in the federal government piling up a huge surplus. There is no common sense in depriving the individual of his earnings and possible savings, while the government absorbs his earnings in taxes and by the sale of unnecessary bonds.

Certainly a publication like "America," which so strongly defends the family, ought to recognize the viciousness of making the nation dependent on the state rather than on the thrift of the parent. But thrift and savings are impossible when taxes are so high.

But Dodger games are going to run longer if a vote has to be taken on the question "should Leo go out on the field at this point and argue with the umpire?"

And I don't know what the procedure will be when the vote is announced from the bench . . . "Three in favor; three opposed two, indifferent, four, don't know."

And the player who is criticized in the bleachers for never coming into home plate standing up can always claim "that's what I'd like to do but they always vote me into a slide."

Well we'll have to see how it works out but I know this much . . . . No matter how the players vote they'll never get ride of the vote they'll never get rid of the plate.

British Crisis and the U. S.

By Walter Lippmann

THE recent British white paper and Sir Stafford Cripps' statement about the financial position of the United Kingdom should convince anyone—particularly Senator Taft, who has a good head for figures when he studies them — how extremely dangerous it would be to reduce further the amount of European aid. For even if the full amount authorized in the Vandenberg bill is made available promptly it can only moderate the coming crisis of liquidation in the United Kingdom and in the British Empire.

The situation can be measured by realizing that the Vandenberg bill would provide direct assistance to the 16 nations and indirect assistance to Canada and Latin America at the rate of about $16,000,000 a day. Yet the United Kingdom and the sterling area for which it is responsible are now spending each day over $11,000,000 more than they are able to earn.

LIPPMANN

Since the Marshall plan must also meet the most urgent deficits of western Europe and of western Germany, it can at best, even if Taft, Senator Wherry and Representative Taber accept it as it is, meet only a portion of the British deficit.

As Britain will have exhausted her reserves of dollars and gold by this summer, the best that the Marshall plan can do is to mitigate the crisis—to enable the British to manage an orderly reorganization out of bankruptcy.

Even with full Marshall aid, even with the favoring conditions of the fall in the world prices of food and raw materials, the great liquidation cannot be averted. It can only be managed in such a way as to prevent the catastrophe of mass unemployment and hunger in the British Isles and a galloping collapse of the British commitments in the outer world.

Test to be Met

Even to do that will require sacrifice, discipline and political audacity on a scale and in a degree which no free people in all history has ever had to show. All one can say, though that is a good deal, is that if any people can meet this test, the British people will meet it.

It is difficult, perhaps impossible at this time, to make an estimate of the impact of the British crisis upon the American economy. It is no doubt true, as almost all our own economists have been saying, that the recession of prices is a good thing, and that there is for the present no serious danger of its developing into a bad depression, and certainly not into mass unemployment and collapse.

There is not only the unsatisfied demand for goods and new capital investment, there is also the fact that no administration and no Congress could or would now permit deflation to run its course as in 1929. The idea that prices, wages, production, private investment can be supported by monetary and fiscal measures and by public investment is firmly fixed in the minds of the people.

Nevertheless, the British crisis will have far-reaching effects throughout the world, and many drastic and unprecedented measures, that cannot now be clearly foreseen, will have to be taken to control these effects. We must not harbor the illusion that when we have adopted the Marshall plan European recovery will follow.

The Marshall plan will in practice be one, but not by any means the only, instrument for controlling the economics and political effects of the crisis through which Britain, and also Germany, and therefore much of the world, will be passing before stabilization is near an recovery can begin.

Political Effects

The political effects of Britain's economic position are easier to see though they are very hard to deal with. We can say now, I think, that the greatest miscalculation which we all made about the post-war world was in failing to realize how much Great Britain was weakened by the war. Even those who never had the illusion that Russia would be a comfortable partner in the building of "one world," did take it for granted that after the war Russia would have to deal with America and Britain—with two great and equal powers. Had we been right, had Britain been able to fill the role of an equal great power in the Mediterranean and in the Middle East and in Germany, the whole postwar situation would have been radically different, and decisively easier to manage.

Our own commitments would never have become so overextended as they are today. Responsibilities for which we are unprepared, critical decisions for which our officials lack experience and training, would have been shared, not thrust upon the state department pell mell in one emergency after another. The British, feeling a strength which they do not now have, would have displayed a statesmanship and magnanimity in Europe and in the Middle East which Mr. Bevin is too harried to display.

That is why the conception of a new Europe, formed by a political confederation of the European states that are free to join in it, is gaining such support among those who understand the situation of the world. Increasingly it is plain that even with the Marshall plan a true recovery is not going to take place, that there must be also, and as the foundation of an economic recovery, a political reconstruction of Europe.

Without that, this country will continue to be at once overextended and isolated, compelled to bear burdens and responsibilities all over the globe, yet compelled to bear them alone—with many friends and well-wishers to be sure, but without partners and allies who can share effectively the burden and the awful responsibility.

Topping His List

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, Feb. 17, 1938.

Senators in Washington, spurred by appeals to aid a half million new unemployed rushed consideration of the $250,000,000 emergency relief appropriation which had been approved the night before by the house.

A patriotic program honoring Washington and Lincoln was given at a meeting of Harriet Beecher Stowe Tent No. 48, Daughters of Union Veterans. Taking part were Mrs. Alberta Bartlett, Mrs. Martha Wilcox, Mrs. Loa Flocken, Mrs. Mary Pennell, Mrs. Florence Miller and Mrs. Gail Montgomery.

Suzanne Arter of Franklin street celebrated her birthday anniversary with a party at the Waddell kindergarten on South Prospect street.

Harding High school debaters, coached by T. D. Bain, won their third debate of the week with a two-to-one decision over debaters from Marysville High school. The two teams debated the question of unicameral system of legislation. Harding was represented by Owen Meddles and John Grimes and on the Marysville team were Dick Smith and Betty Liggett.

"Washington and Lincoln" was the subject of a talk given by James B. McNamara of Niles, O., author, poet and composer of extemporaneous verse, at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club at Hotel Marion.

Arthur E. Chenev, owner of a retail furniture business on North Main street, purchased the remaining assets of the Wilson Furniture Co. at a sale held in the common pleas courtroom.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Friday, Feb. 17, 1928.

Officials of the Logan Gas Co. filed application with the state utilities commission for permission to put into effect immediately in Marion and 17 other Ohio communities a temporary increased rate schedule. The affected communities had previously protested against the company's proposal.

A proposal to establish a new state highway linking Bellefontaine and Mt. Vernon as part of a through route across the state and in Marion county passing through Prospect and striking the Delaware road just below Waldo was set for hearing on Feb. 28. A number of Marion county land owners were lending support to the proposal.

Mrs. Minnie Ellen Fisher, 38, died at her home in Richwood.

Construction work for the building of a new interurban passenger station being erected by the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co. on West Center street was started.

Harding High school cagers closed the season in the N.C.O. league by defeating Shelby, 15-14, on The Star auditorium floor. Marion finished in second place in the league standings, having won three games and lost two. Ashland won the league title. In the Harding lineup were Gillis, Garrett, Evans, Partridge, Cram, McAninch and Lewis.

Albert O. Jennings, 63, Marion commercial traveler representing a sewing machine company, dropped dead in a Celina hotel.

George Whysall was reelected president of the Marion Auto club.

Mrs. Emma Luella Bayles, 70, died at her home in Caledonia.

Jack Houghton, student at Ohio Wesleyan university, returned to Delaware after spending the day with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Z. B. Houghton.

Robert Conley of Columbus arrived in Marion to spend the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Conley.

Soviet Desertions Continue

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON — Kravchenko, Gusenko and the other well publicized individual deserters from the Soviets system have evoked a fascinated interest in this country. But almost no interest at all has been aroused by the far more extraordinary fact that more than 5,000 Russian officials, military officers and soldiers belonging to the Soviet military government and occupation forces in Germany have deserted to the western zones in the last two years.

Evidently a single Kravchenko, if he writes a book, is capable of capturing the public imagination. Every one of these Russians who have fled from the Soviet zone in Germany has taken greater risks to find freedom than Kravchenko took. Nevertheless, more than 5,000 who have fled constitutes too massive, amazing and incredible a phenomenon to make much impression.

The fact of these mass deserters from the Soviets, first reported in this space and not since disputed, also poses an important and curious issue of public policy. The issue can be stated very simply: does the American tradition of welcoming political refugees still mean anything at all, or are those who choose freedom simply to be told to go back to slavery, without further ado?

The problem arises in connection with these Russian officers, officials and soldiers who have fled from the Soviets in Germany for a very curious reason. It is now the official rule of the American military government that these men must be returned to the dreadful justice of the Soviet secret police, if they are so unlucky as to be caught in our zone of Germany.

No Reason for Agreement

This rule arises from an agreement made, at the end of the war, between the Soviet and American commands in Germany. The agreement required each command to return deserters to the other. There was, at the time, some reason for the agreement, since a small number of American troops had been left behind in the part of the Soviet zone first occupied by our forces. So far as is known, there was no reason at all for the infamous parallel agreement, that Russian prisoners of war and other Soviet citizens found by us in Germany would also be returned to the Soviet Union, even if they were unwilling to be repatriated. But this agreement was also reached and enforced.

Long ago, when it become apparent that large numbers of Soviet officers and officials desired to desert to the west, a group within the American military government in Germany began to advocate jettisoning these agreements with the Soviets. The proposal was vetoed by General Lucius D. Clay. The problem was then raised on a higher level, in Washington, but abandonment of the exchange of deserters agreement was again vetoed by Secretary of State George C. Marshall. This is why the agreement is still in force.

There does not seem to be any very good reason why it should be still in force, except the inbred reluctance of military men to encourage desertion, even from the

The Kremlin and the Composers

MOSCOW has cracked down on its great composers rebuking them for not being more ideologic. works. They are discouraging pandering to the modern trend of music in the western states where "there is a passion for distorted reproductive combinations which transform music into a chaotic heap of sounds." The Kremlin is alarmed. If it is not careful Russia will be getting discords.

* * *

What Stalin wants is music which has something of the rhythm of Gromyko and the lyrical beauty of a Vishinsky speech. He has listened to the music on the Voice of America broadcasts and is determined that the Russians shall never be captured by a couple of crooners from Pinsk or Minsk.

PHILLIPS

We can imagine a scene at the Kremlin when any Russian come up with "Too Fat Polka":

Song Composer
Here's a silly dirty, you can sing it right away
Now here is what you say; say it while you may.

Stalin: Stop! The opening line is too bourgeois. You start off with the premise that the song is silly. In Russian music nothing can be silly. And that line "you can sing it right away" is a waste of words. Only a stupid Britisher or American has to be told he can sing a song right away.

Composer (resuming):
Here's a silly jingle, you can sing it night and noon,
Here's the words, that's all you need, cause I just sang the tune.

Stalin: How decadent! Jingles! Bah! This song is an attempt to introduce commercials to the Soviet Republicans. It is a capitalistic plot.

Composer:
Oh, I don't want her, you can have her,
She's too fat for me.
She's too fat for me, she's too fat for me.

Stalin: What nonsense! The Soviet mind rebels against any such philosophy. The question of weight never stops a Russian. Only a weakling nation declines a dance with a woman over a point of poundage. Unless you wish to find yourself in Siberia, you will change it to something like this:

I don't want him, you can have him
He's a Marshall planner;
He's too dumb, he's too corrupt,
He's too much of a warmonger for me.

Composer: If you'll hear me through, it goes on like this, sir:—

I get dizzy, I get numbo
"When I'm dancing with my jumbo."

Stalin: Did Marx get dizzy dancing? Do you find anything in Lenin's works about getting numbo, however great the task? A Russian is strong and resolute. If he dances with a jumbo he does it like a man. Change it to something like this:

I get mystic, I get fistic
With a girl that's capitalistic.

* * *

Composer: Please hear the chorus:

Can she prance up a hill?
No! No! No! No!
Can she dance a quadrille?
No! No! No! No!

Stalin (suddenly enraptured): Wait! You've got something there in the true Russian spirit of the times. Cut out every line in the song except the ones with the No! No! No! No! in it.

Composer: Very good sir.

Stalin: And listen . . . Put in more Noes!

Cotton Corners

By TRUMAN TWILL

Dear Nephew, As I kept telling you I would I am now having my annual flu. It had been sneaking up on me for four days. I knew it was there, all right, but I couldn't quite put my finger on it until this morning. When I tried to get out of bed it had me by the legs. I couldn't struggle loose.

Giving a long, low groan, which I expected would be enough to wake your Aunt Effie and enlist her sympatny, I sank back upon my pillow. It took three more groans to get her awake. "I have the flu," I announced in a sepulchral tone. What do you suppose she said?

"Thank heaven."

So here I am, propped up in bed—but I am not giving your aunt anything to be thankful for. To be honest about it, I am being a mean, cantankerous old devil. I always am for the first little while that I go to bed with the flu. You see I am still fighting back at first. The second day I quit fighting and let the bugs claim me for their very own. I am as meek as a mule.

As far as I can see, this is no different from all other flus, or should I say flues? Besides the misery in my legs, which feel like cold spaghetti, I feel as if someone had thrown sand in my shoulder blades and my eyes. My mouth is the consistency of an old glove left lying on a register. Worst of all, I don't have any appetite. The only thing that tastes good to me is tomato juice, which I feel like having every half hour. Your aunt claims I yell for it every five minutes, which is a lie because I have been keeping track of the time.

I've read all the good books lately and can't find anything in the magazines or newspapers to interest me so I have been thinking about daylight-saving time. I notice that some of you city fellers are warming over that old chestnut. Won't you ever learn?

Arguing about the clock is as futile as arguing about religion. Nobody ever convinced anybody and nobody ever can.

Except for places that really need it, such as big cities whose people live so jammed up they need extra daylight during summer to recuperate them, no one should monkey with the clock. Daylight saving isn't one of those propositions that are six of one and a half dozen of the other, because time zones now are established by custom and experience. It's not like it was when I was younger and we didn't have any established time zones. Sun time, central time, fast time, slow time—take your pick and let confusion reign supreme. It sure was a mess.

It is time for me to holler again for more tomato juice. This probably will be my last one before going to sleep, unless your aunt makes the mistake of asking me if there is anything else I want. I think I could do with a scrambled egg sandwich and a glass of milk. After all the way those germs are working inside of me they're entitled to a little nourishment. I don't want them to go away and spread the news that I was inhospitable.

If you're going to send me a card of sympathy be quick about it. I'll be in bed four days longer if the weather doesn't moderate. Give my regards to the family.

...mies about him, even in his presidential cabinet, there was never a failure. His goal was set and he reached it, although continually beset by obstacles, bitter opposition and criticism. Through it all, Judge Jackson pointed out, the Civil war president by patience, good humor, and forbearance, was able to withstand the ridicule, criticism and contempt heaped upon him.

Evidence of Guidance

That Lincoln was guided and endowed with understanding by some providential influence was apparent, Judge Jackson said. As evidence the Lima jurist referred to instances of how, in the face of warnings, the President faced danger frequently and without fear by appearing in public when public feeling was running high and his enemies were threatening him. Then, Judge Jackson related, after victory over the South, came a statement of Lincoln to his cabinet that he felt his end was near. There was every indication, said the speaker, that the president had a premonition of the tragic death which came to him not long afterward in Ford's theater at Washington.

Judge Jackson went into details of the account of the assassination, pointing to circumstances which indicated persons high in Washington political life being involved in the plot. This the speaker likened to the betrayal of Christ by Judas.

Tribute to Mrs. Lincoln

Many of the previously related accounts of Lincoln's life have contained inaccuracies, Judge Jackson declared. He referred especially to the role filled by Mary Todd Lincoln, the president's wife, to whom the Lima jurist paid eloquent tribe as "a fine woman and the only kind Lincoln could have lived with."

The speaker was presented to his audience in a brief talk, by John K. Bartram, Marion attorney and member of the Presbyterian Men's club.

The program opened with songs by members of the club led by Richard Keller.

Special Services Set

The club president, David Isaly, reported that National Men's Sunday will be observed, Feb. 29 with special services in the First Presbyterian church attended by members of the club.

The pastor, Rev. Howard L. Olewiler, announced that a laymen's dinner meeting of the Marion Presbytery will be held at Bucyrus Wednesday night, Feb. 25, to launch the Presbytery's participation in a nationwide Presbyterian laymen's movement planned at a recent meeting of church leaders in Chicago. A large delegation of Presbyterian men from Marion is expected to attend.

The dinner at last night's meeting, held in the church social rooms, was served by the First Presbyterian Ladies Aid society's Circle No. 2, under the direction of the circle's teacher, Mrs. D. R. Biggert.

Join in Arrangements for Regional Event.

Five representatives of the local Sea Scout Ship 59, a senior unit of the Boy Scouts of America, sponsored by the Marion Navy club, attended a meeting in Toledo Saturday at which plans were made to hold a "regional Sea Scout rendezvous" this summer.

Attending from here were Dwight Altman, committeeman for Sea Scout Ship 59, Floyd Seaton, committeeman, LeRoy Lumpkins, a Sea Scout, Marvin Buckingham, a Sea Scout, and Mitchell Rech, field commissioner of Senior Scouting.

The "rendezvous" has been set for July 15-16-17. As part of the affair the Toledo Yacht club will furnish small sailboats for a Sea Scout regatta. A list of tours for the event was made up and will comprise a trip to the Libby-Owens-Ford Glass Co., the Willys Jeep assembly line, the coal docks, a trip aboard a Coast Guard cutter and others. It is also planned, if possible, to charter an excursion boat for a moonlight cruise, dance and a bridge of honor.

About 1,000 Sea Scouts are expected to take part in the "rendezvous." The local Sea Scout unit members, who number about 20, are making plans to take part in the event as a part of the summer activities. Other members of Senior units are being invited to take part in the activities as guests of the Sea Scout members.

Hope To Settle Two Questions About Mars

By The United Press

McDONALD OBSERVATORY, FORT DAVIS, TEX., Feb. 17—Astronomers at McDonald observatory hope to settle within the next 24 hours two key questions about the possibility of life on Mars.

As the planet swings closer to earth tonight than it will be at any other time in two years, they may determine:

1. Whether or not water, in the form of ice or water vapor, is present.

2. Are the green areas obvious on Mars trees or grass or weeds, like our own, or are they some other vegetable form?

In Plain Words

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON

IN CONGRESS Alaska has been given its first push toward statehood.

That doesn't mean it will become a state this year or next. But any push in that direction is more than it's had before.

Alaska, twice the size of Texas, has a population of about 90,000—60,000 whites and 30,000 Eskimos and Indians.

It's 89 times bigger than Hawaii which has a 500,000 population. Hawaii may have a better chance of getting statehood this year.

That's partly because the house has approved Hawaiian statehood. Now it's up to the senate. Neither house nor senate has acted on Alaska.

James Marlow

But yesterday a congressional group, the subcommittee of the house committee on public lands, told the full committee it thinks Alaska should be a state.

This subcommittee held hearings here and in Alaska last year on the question.

Bills to make Alaska a state have been kicking around in congress for years. This is the first time a hearing ever was held on one of them.

Now if the full committee approves, and tells the full house, and if the house approves, then it's up to the senate.

All that's needed to make Alaska a state is an okay by both houses. But the senate may not approve, even if the house does.

The senate has a busy year. None of its committees has held hearings on Alaska. And, besides, the senators may think twice about this:

Statehood means Alaska's 90,000 people would have two senators in congress, the same as, say, New York State's 13,000,000 people.

SINCE THE SENATE has only 96 members now, two more would be important in any close vote.

Alaska would be entitled to one representative in the house. But since there are 435 house members, one more wouldn't mean such difference.

About one-third of Alaska's voters are against statehood now. The reasons for this will be gone into later in this story.

The United States bought Alaska from Russia in 1867 for $7,200,000. But this government didn't do much to bring law and order there until 1884.

Then it sent in a federal judge and some other officials. The Klondike gold rush of 1898 drummed up interest in the place. Settlers followed the miners.

IN 1912 CONGRESS made Alaska a territory. Which meant the president appointed a governor and the people could elect their own legislature, house and senate.

And the territory has a delegate to congress. He can't vote, but he represents the people of Alaska.

Output of industry runs over $70,000,000 a year. It's concentrated mainly in three businesses: furs, fishing, mostly salmon, and mining—gold, coal, platinum.

The people pay federal income taxes but Alaska has no income taxes of its own, for persons or corporations, and no general property tax.

The territory has one railroad, owned by the U.S. government. It was opened in 1923.

Some of the arguments against statehood for Alaska—a number of Alaskans have protested to congress—go like this:

THE POPULATION IS TOO small now for statehood. The majority of the 60,000 white people live in the towns and cities. Alaska, which gets a lot of money help from the government while it's a territory, couldn't afford to run itself as a state. Alaska is too far from the United States to have the same interests and problems.

The house subcommittee listened to all these arguments against statehood and brushed them aside. Some arguments for statehood go this way:

The small size of the population is no argument against statehood. Twelve states had smaller populations when they were admitted to statehood. Alaska now is a strategic part of the United States.

As a territory, Alaska is subject to the whims of congress which can pass any law it wishes about Alaska. As a state, Alaska would have to be treated by congress as any other state.

The subcommittee says other territories were able to raise money to pay their way when they became states so there's no reason why Alaska couldn't.

Besides, Alaska has tremendous resources which are waiting to be developed.

RENT CONTROL RULED LEGAL

Supreme Court and Congress Both Act in Favor of Tenants.

Special to The Star

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—People who pay rent got good news Monday. From the supreme court and congress.

The supreme court, by unanimously upholding the constitutionality of the rent control act of 1947, reversed a ruling handed down last November, by a Cleveland federal district court. The lower court had said that the act was unconstitutional, contending that congress lost the authority to regulate rents when President Truman declared an end to hostilities Dec 31, 1946.

The high court issued its decision a few minutes after the house banking committee voted to extend rent controls for 31 days beyond the Feb 29 expiration date and to consider a longer extension next month.

The house resolution, sponsored by Rep Wolcott (R) of Michigan, was approved by a vote of 18 to 5. It will probably come up in the house for action next week.

Senate banking committee chairman Tobey (R) of New Hampshire announced that his group is near agreement on a measure extending rent controls.

Douglas Writes Opinion

Justice Douglas wrote the supreme court opinion. Speaking for the whole court, he said:

"Whatever may be the consequences when war is officially terminated the war power does not necessarily end with the cessation of hostilities."

The supreme court acted with unprecedented rapidity in issuing its decision. Oral arguments on the case were heard only two weeks ago.

Justice Douglas said the legislative history of the act "makes abundantly clear that there has not yet been eliminated the deficit in housing..."

He said this shortage was caused in considerable measure "by the heavy demobilization of veterans and by the cessation or reduction in residential construction during the period of hostilities."

The supreme court acted with unprecedented rapidity in issuing its rent case decision. Oral arguments on the case were heard only two weeks ago.

In another decision the supreme court refused to order the state of Oklahoma to admit Mrs. Ada Lois Sipuel Fisher, 23-year-old Negro woman, to the University of Oklahoma's all-white law school.

In an 8 to 1 ruling, the court said "it is clear" that Oklahoma courts "did not depart" from the supreme court's mandate of Jan. 12 directing that Mrs. Fisher be given a legal education as quickly as a white student could be given one in the state.

In response to the Jan. 12 high court mandate, Oklahoma set up a three-professor law school for Negroes in the state capitol. Mrs. Fisher refused to enter it and appealed again to the supreme court to order Oklahoma to admit her to its regular law school.

House Committee Upheld

By a 6 to 3 vote, the court rejected an attack on the constitutionality of the house un-American activities committee.

The court refused to hear an appeal by Leon Josephson, an admitted Communist who was fined $1,000 and sentenced to a year in jail for refusing to be sworn in as a witness or to testify at a committee hearing.

By a 5 to 3 vote, refused a hearing to 14 Nazi doctors convicted at Nuernberg of such crimes against humanity as sterilization and execution by freezing and in gas chambers. Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief U.S. prosecutor at Nuernberg, took no part in the ruling.

The court refused to review a challenge to the validity of the Taft-Hartley act ban on unionization of foremen.

went elsewhere for two reasons, "poor service, and lack of personality in the sales people who waited on them."

Mr. Roth cautioned, "Be courteous, be helpful, but use no high pressure on your customers.

"Knowing what is required of you is essential before you can accomplish an objective. Remember first of all that as a salesman you should have these qualifications—personality, knowledge of merchandise, the know how of the art of demonstration, and a good general education. Once you have achieved these qualifications which others expect of you then remember these facts of life about your job. A successful sale is never made unless the customer is happy. It is your employer's job to train his employes to be good salespeople. There should be a store training program. Learn all there is to know about new merchandise, for it is not hard to talk about a product with which you are completely familiar. If you would advance and progress in your chosen profession, know all there is to know about your job, and the job just above yours in the ladder toward success."

Mr. Roth supplemented his address with a question and answer session with his audience.

The showing of the National Cash Register company film, "Where the Rainbows Begin," which demonstrated the fundamentals of selling, immediately preceded the main speaker.

Speakers at Next Session

The institute, which is sponsored by the Retail Board of Managers of the Marion Chamber of Commerce, will present four speakers at its fourth session Feb. 23. They will speak on four phases of the general subject "Store Services to Increase Sales." Speakers will be E. A. Tenant, Ohio Associated Telephone Co.; Cutler McGrew, J. C. Penney Co.; John W. Ryan, Frank Bros.; and John Schaffner, Schaffner's Furniture store. A movie, "Telephone Courtesy," produced for the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., will be shown.

SENATOR

E. T. Maynard, member of the Chicago board of trade who made profits of $200,000 to $400,000 in the few days following the Feb. 4 market break.

Maynard conferred with the committee briefly yesterday. Ferguson then announced:

"The committee unanimously feels that all his transactions for the period Feb. 4 and following were made on his own judgment and only upon such information as was available to the public."

Trading in commodities is perfectly legal. The committee is interested primarily in speculation by government employes and in finding out if there were any leaks on government information.

ORDNANCE PROPERTY TRANSFER EFFECTED

Government Gives Quit-Claim Deed to Plant.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 17—Adjutant General Charles B. Sawyer said today the government has given the state a quit-claim deed to a portion of the Scioto Ordnance Plant near Marion.

With the purchase of the 1,100 acre property completed, the welfare department plans to spend $100,000 this year on preliminary repair work. The plant is to be converted into a school for delinquent boys.

The first step, Sherwood said, would be to erect a cyclone fence around the present buildings.

It is planned to use the property as an adjunct to the Lancaster Boys Industrial School. Sherwood said it could not be made ready for use before 1949.

The director said the legislature would be asked to appropriate $1,000,000 to rehabilitate the property over a five-year period.

The state acquired the land and 24 buildings at a token cost of $8.16. The government stipulated, however, the property could be used only as an educational institution.

In event the state decided to use the property for another institution, Sherwood said, it would be necessary to buy it outright at an inventory price of $774,000, it was added, however, that it was needed now as an overflow school for the Lancaster institution.

There was a possibility, Sherwood said, that later on the legislature might consider using the property as a site for a new prison or state hospital.

New York Stock Quotations

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 — The forward move was resumed by selected stocks today although many market leaders stumbled over light selling.

Belief that Monday's best recovery in four months was largely of a technical nature, due mainly to professional short covering, tended to cool bullish enthusiasm. Numerous customers remained to stand aside pending more information regarding business, taxes and foreign situations.

Dealings turned relatively sluggish after a fairly active opening. Fractional irregularity set in later.

Aircraft at intervals were U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, N. Y. Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, U. S. Rubber, J. I. Case, Boeing, International Nickel, Consolidated and Texas Co.

Occasional laggards were Goodrich, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, United Aircraft, National Distillers, Kennecott, Philip Morris, Eastern Air Lines, Standard Oil (NJ), Union Pacific, Illinois Central, Southern Railway and Southern Pacific.

Good News For Folks Who Suffer From ✓ STOMACH GAS
✓ SOUR FOOD TASTE
✓ ACID INDIGESTION

Do you feel bloated and miserable after every meal, taste sour, bitter food? If so, here is how you may get blessed relief from this nervous distress.

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment, sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

THE REDMEN of Bucyrus, a team that turned back both Marion quintets earlier in the season, will be on the warpath against Harding here tonight fresh from a triumph over Mansfield Madison, whose win streak they halted at 15 Friday night. . . . The Redmen clubbed St. Mary, 30-23, Dec. 6, and then sneaked by the Hardings, 64-60, a month later, to add Marion's scalps to their string of 12 trophies of 15 forays . . . It was a tight defense that beat the Irish, and it was the hot-shot shooting of the whole tribe and Center Jimmy Gallant in particular that beat the Prexies . . . Tonight the Redmen will be out for the fourteenth and Prexies their sixth.

THE PREXIES pick rugged foes by threes—first Ashland, now Bucyrus, next Columbus Central. Central leads the Capital City circuit. The Prexies journey to Columbus for the game Friday . . . They close the season at Bellevue the following Friday . . . That makes tonight's game their last home stand of the year.

ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN in a county basketball tournament, and it certainly has this year. On the opening night of play, all four winners had been beaten by their victims earlier in the season . . . Saturday, Meeker turned back the undefeated champs, Pleasant . . . . That makes five upsets in eight games . . . Next Saturday, Meeker meets Morral and LaRue battles Caledonia in the semi-finals, and if things run to form, there should be an upset in one of the games . . . In an earlier game this season, Morral took Meeker, 38-25. Can Meeker spring another upset and claim a spot in the group that will represent Marion in the district tourney? . . . . Or will it be LaRue, who went down, 47-32, to the powerful Caledonia combine in the season opener? . . . . Undoubtedly all four teams will be at their top pitch for the games Saturday, for a win then automatically earns a trip to the district tournament in Westerville.

THE MAHATMA of Brooklyn cut himself quite a swath of news today with the disclosure that the majors opposed the use of Negroes after he had signed Jackie Robinson . . . . And now that he has Branched into the realm of pro football, his remarks on the pigskin game were snatched up quicker than a fumble in the end zone . . . . Rickey has an affinity for making news, and maybe it's his attention to timing . . . . He kept the scribes half out of breath all last fall and early winter waiting for word of Leo and a Dodger contract . . . . His latest revelations ought to be good for another week or two of type . . . . Count on the Branch to keep the hot stove burning.

UNDOUBTEDLY, RICKEY is one of the smartest men in baseball . . . . He's feared as a shrewd trader of baseball talent, hailed as the founder of the farm system, and may some day be revered as the emancipator of Negroes in baseball . . . . As far as Marion and the Cubs are concerned, however, his farm down in Zanesville is nothing but a stumbling block . . . . The locals stumbled there last season to lose the play-offs.

Rickey Discloses 15 Major Clubs Opposed Signing Robinson

Tells Wilberforce Gridders Both Majors Adopted Report Banning Negro Players

By FRITZ HOWELL
Ohio AP Sports Editor

WILBERFORCE, O., Feb. 17—Branch Rickey defied the formally expressed opposition of 15 major league clubs to give Jackie Robinson, first Negro star, an chance at organized baseball.

Using the annual football banquet of Wilberforce State university, a Negro school, as his sounding board, Rickey in a caulid and impassioned address told an audience of some 250 last night:

"After I had signed Robinson, but before he had played a game, a joint major league meeting adopted unanimously a report prepared by a joint committee which stated that 'However well intentioned, the use of Negro players would hazard all the properties of baseball.

"You can't find a copy of that report anywhere, but I was at the meeting where it was adopted.

"I sat silent while the other 15 clubs approved it.

"I've tried to get a copy of the report, but league officials tell me all were destroyed.

"But let them deny they adopted such a report, if they dare.

"I'd like to see the color of the man's eyes who would deny it."

Adopted After Appointment

Rickey said the report was adopted at the winter meeting after the appointment of A. B. (Happy) Chandler as commissioner.

"President Ford Frick passed out copies at the National league meeting. Each copy bore the name of them man to whom it was handed.

"After we read them, they were collected. Frick checked off the names to see that he had all the copies. Then in the joint meeting the report was read, and adopted."

Rickey, who flew here last night from a Chicago meeting of the All-America Football conference, spoke long beyond midnight. He was to return to Chicago today.

"I have had this Robinson story inside me for a couple of years," the prexy of the National league champions said, "and I've decided the time has come for me to tell just how I feel about the whole thing.

"I believe that racial extractions and color hues and forms of worship become secondary to what men can do. The denial of equality of opportunity to qualify for work to anyone, anywhere, any time, is not understandable to me.

BRANCH RICKEY

Not Concerned With Color

"The American public is not as concerned with a first baseman's pigmentation as it with the power of his swing, the dexterity of his slide, the gracefulness of his fielding, or the speed of his legs.

"Who thinks of the inconsequentials when great matters of common challenge and natural interest confront us. It is not strange that Robinson should be given a chance in America to feed and shelter and clothe his wife and child and mother in a job he can do well, better than most individuals. It is not strange that a drop of water seeks to find the ocean."

The Brooklyn mahatama said he had spent $25,000 in 1945 scouting Negro players, but that his scouts thought they were seeking talent for a Negro league.

"I knew what I was up against. In St. Louis the Negro patrons were not allowed in the grandstand. In seeking my first Negro player I needed a superlative man, a man who had to be an outstanding player on the field, and a thorough gentleman off it.

Robinson Is a Gentleman

"When I called Robinson to my office he had no idea I wanted him for a white team. I dramatized six situations I knew he would come up against in baseball. I called him names. I all but hit him. And don't kid yourselves, this Robinson is no 'gentle breeze. He's a competitor, a gentleman, and he has great personal respect.

"He is a credit to his race, and he knows he has much of his race's future on his shoulders. For two years he has had an almost Christ-like taste of turning the other cheek.

"He has great homage coming to him, and his race owes it to him. But we have to be careful, for some of the things you'd like to do for him just cannot be. We've had to stop parades and excursions in his honor. He must be treated just the same, no better or worse, than a white boy in our game."

Reds Seek Credit

"Now there is a Communistic effort to get credit for 'forcing' us to sign Robinson. But I warn you to be on your guard against that thing.

"We now have five other Negro boys in our organization, and this is going to come out all right. Two American league clubs have signed Negro palyers, too. And four National league clubs have

HARDING TO HOST BUCYRUS TONIGHT

Prexies Point for Revenge Win Over Hot Redmen.

Marion Harding's basketball team will play host to the high-scoring Redmen from Bucyrus tonight at Edison gym.

The Redmen, conquerors of Mansfield Madison's formerly undefeated quintet, and boasting a record of 12 wins in 15 starts—one of them a 64-60 win over the hard sledding Prexies in an overtime period—will have their toughest men with them when they try to tag the Presidents for another victory.

Ranking second in the Northern Ohio league, the Redmen are enjoying their best season in several years as well as leading their league in team scoring with a total of 314 points in six loop frays.

Coach Al Pesek of the Redmen, not taking the Presidents lightly, will have his boys primed for the occasion. Among the primed ones the highly touted Jim Gallant, who has been hitting around the 19 points per game average, and Bill Kibler, a boy who is at his best when the pressure's on.

The Prexies, seeking that tough sixth win, can and might take this one says Kenny Somerlot. Starting for the President will be Dick Riddle and Merle Daum at the forwards, Jim Coss at center, Dick Thomas at one guard, and either Dick Leffler or Jim Rea at the other.

"But everyone is likely to get in the game, if I continue to use my plan for giving my four juniors and two sophomores experience," he said. "We're building."

Going under to the Ashland A's in their last fracas by a score of 56-42., the Hardingmen do not intend to be sidetracked by the Redmen tonight—overtime or no.

Bucyrus, in shattering the 15-game winning streak compiled by the Madison Rams, scored only 10 fielders. They made their total of 39 points when they connected on 10 of 26 throws from the gratis line. Four of Madison's first stringers too early shoyers—via the personal foul route.

BOY SCOUT TROOP 4 DEFEATS TROOP 29

Boy Scout Troop 4 was prepared Saturday night when they met Troop 29 on the basketball court at the Y.M.C.A., defeating them by a score of 39-11. Kinsel was the big gun for the winners with 19 points, while Unland paced the losers with a total of six. Gorby and Lantz each racked five fielders to complete the scoring for Troop 4.

Troop 4's reserves also won as they trounced 29's second stringers 32-12.

Ohio U. Branch Takes Mt. Gilead Tourney

By The Associated Press

MT. GILEAD, Feb. 17—Chillicothe branch of Ohio university defeated Wilberforce university 56 to 53, in the finals of the invitational basketball tournament held in the Mt. Gilead High school last Saturday night. Wilberforce lead until the closing minutes of the game at which time the Bobkits overcome a three-point lead and held the ball the closing second to nose-out the Force.

In the opening game the Ohio university branch defeated Nite college, 62 to 51, in a very close game. The Nitehawks took a 43 to 41 lead midway in the final half, but the shooting of the Taylor brothers was too much for Nite to cope with. Wilberforce defeated Bliss college 53 to 49 in the second game of the evening.

Last season was the 28th time the New York Yankees have topped the American League in home run hitting.

OHIO STATE UPSETS WISCONSIN, 53-47

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 17—Ohio State's basketball quintet hasn't a mathematician's chance of winning the Big Nine title. But what the Buckeyes are doing to teams that have:

Wisconsin's defending champions took it on the chin here in Columbus last night, 53-47.

That loss knocked Wisconsin out of the lead, and marked Michigan back atop the standings. Two weeks ago, Ohio State dumped Michigan off the top and Saturday Coach Tippy Dye's seventh-place crew trimmed Illinois.

Thus far the Buckeyes have won four Big Nine games—all on the home court (Northwestern was the fourth victim). Iowa is the only title contender to come out of Columbus with a win. And the Hawks had all kinds of trouble before they finally triumphed, 49-41.

Ohio State's Wisconsin victory was the third straight against Big Nine rivals here. It perked up Coach Dye's pre-season comment that his all-sophomore team wouldn't win the title "but will give some of the leaders trouble."

The Big Nine's "upset champs" took the lead at 8-6 against Wisconsin and stayed ahead. It was 25-15 at halftime. The Badgers pulled within a point, 34-33, midway in the second half.

Then Dick Schnittker, the Buckeyes' scoring ace, took personal command. He tossed 10 of state's 12 points and the Bucks pulled into a 46-36 lead. From then on, everything was anti-climactic. Schnittker finished with 24 points, leaving him only two shy of Jimmy Hull's all-time Buckeye scoring record of 269, set in 1939.

Washington players hit 10 home runs at Griffith Stadium last season and Stan Spence got half of them.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S Fullerton jr.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—Possibly it is the influence of the basketball season that has led to so much whistle-blowing in sport recently . . . . That isn't the idea of having the court refs do the blowing the whistle on various customs that have been more or less under cover for years . . . . First it was Ed McKeever's "White Paper" about football eligibility and now the pro golfers' fuss about using winter rules . . . . It has been no great secret that the golf tourists have interpreted the rules rather liberally, on the theory that low scores attract paying customers and that various groups and individuals are constantly feuding—though it seldom breaks out in fisticuffs . . . . Neither has the recruiting of college football players been entirely cloaked in secrecy, though McKeever has been called "unethical" for talking too much about it . . . . Sharpest criticism of McKeever to reach this corner is that he gave the lads a "bum deal" by hauling them clear across the country and leaving them stranded while he joined the pros.

Rickey Sees Peace Between Rival Pro Football Leagues

By The Associated Press

WILBERFORCE, O., Feb. 17—Branch Rickey, president of the ... Dodgers of the All-America Football conference, said some ... things about the rival National league today.

... one thing, he predicted peace between the two big grid ... was not too far away and ... All-America was on ... so far as the National ... concerned.

... fortunately the present war ... the leagues is expensive. ... so," Rickey said. "But ... that is because the Na... not convinced of the per... of our league.

... National deserves a lot of ... It pioneered this profes... football thing, and lost a ... way doing it. I imagine ... put us on test, to see ... we're going to fold up, ... they accept us."

... who spoke at the Wil... State university football ... last night, said at a press ... that he would remain ... manager of the Brook... team "until I find some... better qualified, and I won't ... much trouble finding some... who knows more about it ... myself."

... speaking of the relationship be... pro and college football, ... Dodger chief said:

Dollar Mark on Muscle

... put the dollar mark on ... but everyone knows it. ... record is cleaner than some ...

... reference to the recently-... purity code of the col... Rickey observed "you can't ... people good by law, and ... schools wink at recruiting ... by alumni. But if some ... are caught cheating and ... on the blacklist it will be... the vogue to be decent."

He continued that "if you think ... of colleges aren't paying their players, come up to my office, and I'll prove it."

Swinging over to baseball, and the return of Leo (The Lip) Durocher as Brooklyn's manager after a year's suspension, Rickey said:

"Durocher will behave splendidly, as usual. I hope he will lose not of his forcefulness, and that he'll play clean and hard.

Leo Likes Umps

"Many persons think Leo doesn't like umpires, but some of his best friendships are with those men. His mannerisms lead the public to believe he's saying unkind things to them. He makes the same gestures in a friendly card game.

"I'll be very much pleased if he is not banished once this season. I don't hire men to be absent from work."

Observing that Durocher reads some rather weighty books, the boss of the Bums continued:

"If he goes along as he is now he'll be in the accepted term—an educated man. And as long as he wants to do right, he's my manager."

RICKEY

put out feelers for Robinson—one asking if we were interested in trading him, another asking that he be included in a deal we were making, another asking if we knew where it could find a Negro star, and another showing a decided interest in him."

Rickey said the "timing" of his "great experiment" was one thing that worried him after he had decided to use a Negro player.

"The 18th amendment," he said, "was a noble experiment, but it was not timed right and set back the cause of temperance many years. I didn't want to do anything to anticipate the correct timing in my experiment so I talked it over with a committee of educators and others in Brooklyn, in Ohio and other places.

Urged Delay

"Many of them said they thought I had the right idea, but urged me to delay. Others suggested I let some else try it. I decided to try it myself, immediately.

"The President of the International league, when we sent Jackie to Montreal, said Robinson probably would be killed if we used him in Baltimore. He played there and nothing happened. The only thing they've ever thrown at him is a fountain pen for his autograph.

"We knew the success or failure of our experiment was up to Robinson and the Negro race itself. So we set up committees in every National league city, plus a 32-man committee in Brooklyn headed by a supreme court judge, to control Negro enthusiasm and over-adulation.

"One day in 1944, when it became known to a few persons and groups that I was seeking a Negro star, I had more than 30 telegrams. We checked and found all were signed by persons or groups connected with Communistic organizations."

Ford Frick Has No Comment on Disclosure

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—President Ford Frick of the National baseball league said today he had "no comment" on Branch Rickey's disclosure of a major league ban on hiring of Negro players.

"I remember the meeting and recall that we were dealing with changes in players contracts, but I don't remember anything about that Negro phase or phrase," Frick said. "However, as it was a confidential meeting I'm afraid I must say I have no comment."

Frick said he doubted other National league moguls would take action one way or another on Rickey's disclosures at Wilberforce State university last night.

"After all he's a free citizen."

PORTSMOUTH ONE OF 2 ADDITIONS TO A'S FARMS

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 17—Portsmouth, O., class D baseball club is one of two additions to the Philadelphia farm system.

Art Ehlers, director of the farm system, yesterday announced the addition of the Portsmouth club of Ohio-Indiana league, and Moultria, Ga., of the class D Georgia loop.

Three other teams were dropped. They were Lancaster, Pa., of the class B Interstate league; N. Y., of the class D North Atlantic league, and Niagara Falls, N. Y., of the class D Middle Atlantic league.

BIRD-M'GINNIS, V.F.W. CO. C WIN VET TILTS

Opening the second round of play in the Vet league last night at the Armory, Bird-McGinnis downed GI Post 25 to 21 in the first game. V.F.W., first round champs, continued to set the tempo with a 37-30 win over Navy Club, and Company C humbled AMVETS, 34-16.

McGinnis, outclassed throughout most of the game, managed to grab 10 points to five for GI Post in the third frame and stayed even in the final, 6-6, to win by two buckets. Scoring honors were even for both teams, with Williams racking 11 for McGinnis and Humphreys hitting the same for the Post.

V.F.W., playing heads up ball in all periods, and putting on steam in the third when they hit for 16 points, won in fairly easy style. Coulter paced the V.F.W. team with 10 tallies, and Reed and Brunson led the Navy Club with six points each.

Company C took an easy victory from the AMVETS as Hensel pitched for 17 tallies in setting the pace, while Gilbert dropped six in leading the AMVETS.

Richwood Loses To Brown Township, 43-42

RICHWOOD, Feb. 17—Richwood lost a close one last night on the home boards to the second place Delaware county Browns, 43-42.

Brown, putting their 16-3 record against the Richwood Tigers, were lucky to carry off a victory. They won in the final minutes when they connected on four of a possible six from the foul throw line. Smith garnered 10 points in pacing the Brown five, while Bill Taylor, Don Wood and Fred Wall each hit 10 for Richwood.

Richwood's Reserves snapped a 20 game win streak compiled by the young Browns, 39-34.

Green Camp Slips by Hensel; Merchants Shade Carroll's.

Schlairet humbled Smith's, 70-42, Marion Merchants edged Carroll's, 41-38, and Green Camp slipped by Hensel, 43-41, in a trio of games played at the Y.M.C.A. last night.

Schlairet, paced by Harold Dillon who hit for 20 points, ran up the biggest total of the evening as the Schlairet team won by 28 tallies going away. Horn was best for the Smith's with 12 points.

The Merchants, leading by one point, 21-20, at the intermission, flipped one extra two-pointer in the last half to win by three points. Zachman sunk six fielders and four fouls in leading the winners, while Riley and Lewis scored 10 points each to pace the losers.

Weston, firing eight successful field goals, was high for Green Camp as the Campers held onto a 25-16 half-time lead to withstand the last half rally staged by the Hensel crew. Withrow dropped six fielders and two fouls in pacing Hensel with 14 tallies.

35 at Second Annual Insurance Co. Dinner

Covers were placed for 35 at the second annual banquet held by the Ohio Central Agency of the Commonwealth Life Insurance company Saturday night at Greenwood Inn. Guests included wives and friends of the agency staff and speaker for the occasion was William R. Davis III of Louisville, Ky., director of company agencies. Carson J. Cook was host and presided as toastmaster.

The banquet was preceded by a reception. Guest favors for the women were corsages of white carnations tied with red ribbon. Receiving the guests were Mrs. Carson Cook, assisted by Mrs. Howard Littlebaugh of Mansfield and Mrs. Ronald Wilson.

Valentine colors of red and white were used throughout the rooms and for the dinner appointments. The T-shaped table was lighted with candles and places were marked with favors and the evening's program carried out in the valentine theme. Table bouquets were red carnations and white stocks and these were later presented to Mrs. Eugene Bradley of Mansfield, Mrs. Ronald Wilson and Mrs. Ronald Schairer, winners in hearts played during the social hour.

Mr. Davis spoke on "On This Your Husband's Job," and completing the entertainment program was a magic show presented by Dr. Carroll Ritchey and Mrs. Ritchey. Guests from out of the city were from Canton, Mansfield, Delaware, Mt. Vernon, Mt. Gilead and Marysville.

Roving Reports

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK.

THE Russian critic who denounced American jazz as dead and degenerate music has "flipped his lid and ought to come over here and spend a gig at the track."

That was one reaction today along swing street, the main stem of American Jazz, where the hepcats gather to soak up the latest jive.

If you don't understand this, read on. It'll all clear up. But first the background:

The Soviet rulers are worried over the type of tunes the Russian masses like. Apparently no one has come along able to set the "communist manifest" to music, so it could be sung or strummed on the balalaika.

Hal Boyle

The central committee of the Communist party bawled out Dmitri Shostakovich and six other Soviet composers of advanced classical music for their "bourgeois ideology."

This didn't worry the denizens of Swing Street as all seven composers are "strictly from long hair"—Beethoven flavored with boracit.

The man who started 52nd street blowing fresh "riffs" and "hot licks" in rebuttal was V. Gorodinsky, a Soviet music critic who came down with both heels on jazz, which he feels corrupts innocent Soviet youth.

CITING A RUSSIAN educator who complained that modern jazz was "grinding our will into hamburger," Gorodinsky wrote in a Soviet magazine.

"Modern bourgeois music does not awaken strong joyous feelings. On the contrary, it extinguishes and suppresses them. It does not carry one away with impetuous passion but hypnotizes one with the dead cold mechanics of its rhythm and the poverty of its melody."

Comrade Gorodinsky was quoted further in a dispatch from a New York Herald Tribune correspondent as saying jazz had turned the violin into "a clown's broom."

"Is this chaotic mixture of melancholy, exasperating tones alternating with epileptical fits and the roar of small and big drums—is all this music?"

HERE IS SWING street's answer:

Lionel Hampton, bandleader and a top exponent of "be-bop," the latest torrid development of jazz:

"Man, that Mr. Gorodinsky has really flipped his lid and ought to come over here and spend a gig at the track. He's goofed but plenty when he says our music is dead."

(Ed's note. One of our office boys who plays a saxophone translates this as follows: "The gentleman must have lost his mind. He would do well to spend an evening at the Savoy ballroom in Harlem where excellent jazz is played. He is mistaken in his views on our music.")

RUDI BLESH, author and jazz critic, thought Gorodinsky was blowing in the wrong end of his ideological clarinet.

"Actually jazz isn't bourgeois music but a proletariat protest of the worker," he said, "especially of the widespread Negro minority with whom it originated."

Duke Ellington said jazz was "live, responsive, ever-changing and means freedom of musical speech."

"I'm afraid the gentleman has spent more time studying politics than our music," he added.

A spokesman for Benny Goodman said that Goodman had found during his experience as director of popular music for American government-sponsored broadcasts to Russia that "maybe the Russian commentators didn't like American jazz but the Russian people did.

"The big trouble for the Russians," he said, "is to get the people to swallow Russian jazz instead of ours."

Campbell School Gives Valentine Program

A Valentine and patriotic program was given at a meeting of the Campbell School Community club Friday night at the school. The program included Bible reading by Joyce Willey; vocal solo, Georgann Williams; Valentine song, first, second and third grade pupils; song, "Young Abe Lincoln," third grade; solo, "Making Valentines," Sondra McElroy; song, "Old Folks at Home," fourth, fifth and sixth grades; "Washington and Lincoln," first and second grades; and a motion picture entertainment feature. A Valentine lunch was served. Chairmen of committees were Mrs. Carl Shepherd, program, and Mrs. Robert Tarbill, social. For an April meeting, Mrs. Max Conklin will be in charge of a program, and Mrs. Cyril Willey, social hour.

forces of the enemy. There are many excellent reasons on the contrary why the agreement should be jettisoned. The main one is that the present flow of desertions from the Soviets in Germany could be transformed into a flood by a change in the rules. A wise German political intimately acquainted with the Soviet setup remarked to one of these correspondents in Berlin: "Soviet headquarters would be deserted if your people would just offer any Russian crossing to your zone forty acres of land and a mule in America." This pithy statement is confirmed by informed authorities in Washington.

Two Obvious Results

A real flood of desertions from the Soviets in Germany would have two obvious results. In the first place, no more effective or more punishing device of psychological warfare could possibly be imagined. Russians in Germany have already had their dependents called home and have been required to live in guarded barracks, in order to limit desertion to the western zones. The desertions continue. If they swell to a flood, the administration of the Soviet Zone would certainly be part-paralyzed by the combined effects of universal mutual suspicion and stringently tightened security precautions. In the second place, those who have fled already have provided invaluable information about the inner workings of the Soviet systems. The more who come over, the more will be learned.

The names of the more recent deserters are closely guarded, although it is known they include at least one colonel general and many other personalities of equal importance. Certain names can be listed, however, of former German prisoners of war who have managed to elude the subsidiary exchange agreement.

A. Karpinsky, former professor of geology and hydrology at the Leningrad Mining Institue and a leading expert on Soviet mineral resources; K. G. Molodetsky, former director of the economic department of the Institute of Peoples of the North; L. N. Smirnov, former professor of petroleum geology at the Leningrad Institute; and V. Brailovsky, one of the first Soviet physicists to explore nuclear fission, are among these Russians now hidden in Germany. Surely men of this type, whether former prisoners of war or more recent escapees, should be brought to America under some relaxation of the immigration laws, to be formed into an institute of Russian studies.

Your Good Health

By DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Common Childhood Infection

Whenever a child, particularly a girl, has a fever whose cause is not apparent, both doctor and parents should suspect pyelitis. This is an infection of that part of the kidney where the excretions collect before emptying into the bladder and it is one of the most common of the infections of childhood. Both boys and girls are affected, but the disorder occurs about ten times more often in girls.

Besides fever, the sudden occurrence of bed-wetting is suggestive of the disorder. In babies, the only observable symptoms may be vomiting and diarrhea.

For these reasons, whenever such symptoms occur, a microscopic examination of the urine should be made. If pyelitis is present, the urine may contain many white blood cells, as well as a small amount of albumin which helps make the diagnosis.

It is also important to determine the kind of germ producing the infection since it may be due to such various organisms as the colon bacillus, Staphylococcus or Streptococcus and treatment depends on the kind of infection present.

It is suggested, if the infection is due to colon bacilli, that one of the sulfonamide preparations be given at once. The drug is given as a rule, every four hours, day and night. Of course, plenty of fluids should also be administered and the treatment continued for from four to six days, depending upon the severity of the illness. For three or four days after the drug has been stopped, the urine should be examined to find out whether or not all of the germs have disappeared. Then, in about two weeks, another examination should be made just to make sure that there is no recurrence of the infection.

Should a recurrence take place the treatment must be repeated. If a second relapse occurs, an X-ray examination of the urinary tract must be made to make sure that there is no condition causing blocking of the flow of the urine.

Often, when such a blocking exists, surgical treatment is required to relieve it. The blocking may be in the form of a narrowing of the ureter which leads from the kidney to the bladder. Now and then there may be a stone present.

In these instances in which the infection is due to the Staphylococcal penicillin is employed.

Another drug, known as neomycin has been employed with value in some cases.

Mandelate, may be useful when the infection is due to co- bacilli.

Of course, in each case the tor will decide which preparation should be used as he determines the type of germ causing the fection.
